

ARTICLE VI

The Grantor and any other person shall have the right to make additions to the principal of any or all of these trusts. The Trustee shall commingle with, and thereafter administer as a part of the trust, any property which may be accepted by the Trustee as an addition to the trust already held by the Trustee. The Trustee agrees that he will not refuse to accept any property devised or bequeathed to him, as Trustee hereunder, by the Grantor's Will.

ARTICLE VII

During the continuation of any of the trusts hereinabove provided for, it shall not be necessary for the Trustee to have a guardian appointed for any beneficiary with respect to the disbursement of income or principal or such beneficiary; and instead, the Trustee may pay such of the said income or principal as may belong to such beneficiary, or so much of it as may be necessary for the purposes of such beneficiary as hereinabove provided, either directly to such beneficiary or to some other person, firm, institution or corporation for such beneficiary's benefit and the receipt of such person, firm, institution or corporation or the receipt of the beneficiary himself or herself shall fully acquit the Trustee to the extent of the payment or payments so made.

ARTICLE VIII

No person or corporation dealing with the Trustee shall be required to inquire into the necessity or propriety of any proposed action or to see to the application of any money paid to the Trustee.

ARTICLE IX

The Trustee shall not be required to give any bond or other security for the faithful performance of its duties.
