Greenville Man Sentenced on Aggravated Domestic Violence

Thirteenth Circuit Solicitor Walt Wilkins states that CHRISTOPHER TERRELL GAMBLE, age 33, was convicted on March 5, 2014 by a Greenville County jury Aggravated Domestic Violence, and given the maximum sentence of ten years by the Honorable C. Victor Pyle, Jr.

Evidence presented during the trial established that on May 26, 2012, CHRISTOPHER TERRELL GAMBLE beat the victim about the head with his fists and struck her several times with an aluminum bat. He also destroyed her phone so she could not call for help. The victim initially reported to medical personnel and Travelers Rest Police officers that she had fallen. She testified that she did this because she feared the Defendant. The victim's mother went to the victim's home a few days after the beating to check on the victim and found her bruised and beaten. The victim testified at trial that when she saw her mother at her home she felt safe to tell that truth about what Gamble had done to her.
